Buddy Yosha

Providing injured individuals with a level playing field when seeking compensation has been Buddy Yosha's goal since 1963. A combination of skill, a very effective courtroom style and a notable record of successes inside the courtroom have earned Yosha a noteworthy reputation in the legal community.

A life-long resident of Indianapolis, Buddy received his undergraduate degree and his law degree from Indiana University. In 43 years of practice, he has spent over one year of his life in front of juries, advancing cases on behalf of his clients. He has helped people from every branch of society obtain substantial verdicts in cases against formidable adversaries including insurance companies and corporations. The victims that Yosha represents have been injured physically and/or financially as the result of someone else's negligence.

Buddy Yosha

Yosha has left his mark on Indiana's legal landscape. He is a past president and longtime board member of the Indiana Trial Lawyers Association. He was also the state delegate to the Board of Governors of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America. Yosha has been listed in all of the editions of The Best Lawyers in America, for over three decades. This publication is a peer-review survey of thousands of the top lawyers in the U.S. by Woodward White Publishing Co. After his most recent inclusion in this publication, Yosha was congratulated by the publishers for being "one of a distinguished group of attorneys who have been listed in Best Lawyers for 20 years or longer." Yosha has been widely published and has lectured extensively in most areas of civil litigation before state, regional and national audiences for over three decades.

Yosha's work has won national attention, with several of his many cases being profiled in national legal journals as well as consumer publications such as Cosmopolitan, Fortune, the Washington Post and the New York Times. One jury trial in which he represented a severely injured individual as well as his non-injured wife was profiled on the front page of The Wall Street Journal. In addition to the verdict he obtained for the husband's injuries, he also obtained a very substantial verdict for the loss of services the wife sustained as a result of her husband's injury. Buddy's successful defense of this verdict on appeal focused on the worth of the losses that an uninjured spouse sustains when his or her marital partner is severely injured.

Yosha has spent his entire professional life in private practice, seeking civil justice for injured individuals as his sole area of practice. He is in practice with William Levy, Bryan C. Tisch and Jason Shartzter, and a professional, experienced staff of attorneys and support staff who limit their practices exclusively to helping injured people. Yosha also prides himself on his medical-legal support staff, which he perceives as one of the finest.

Dear Mr. Yosha: We are pleased to inform you that you have again been selected by your peers to be included in the upcoming 2007 edition of The Best Lawyers in America in the specialty of Personal Injury Litigation. You are one of a distinguished group of attorneys who have been listed in Best Lawyers for twenty years or longer."

-- The Best Lawyers in America

Although his firm has represented thousands of people with both small and major claims, the current litigation climate no longer makes it financially practical to pursue the smaller ones, regardless of the merits of the case. The insurance industry simply does not pay those claims, making it impractical to take these claims to court. The contingency fee system levels the playing field and ensures that a seriously injured victim can get the best lawyer the system allows, since the client pays no fee unless a settlement or recovery is made.
